Lippia citriodora

Hishtil is proud to introduce a new and exclusive series of three premium aromatic Lippia citriodora varieties. Lippia citriodora (also known by its botanical name Aloysia citrodora palau), is an aromatic species in the Verbenaceae family, native to the northern part of South America.

Native Americans used it for generations, mainly as a medicinal plant. Today, this lemony aromatic herb is used to flavor chicken and salads, and is also used to make delicious tea infusions and cold drinks.
